PROGRESSIVES RETURN TO GOP AS 'LEFT WING'

Rightists Warn LaFollette That They Will Oppose His Re-Election Bid

PORTAGE, Wis., March 18—Sen. Robert M. LaFollette today led Wisconsin Progressives back to the Republican party, abandoning the independent organization his brother tried to develop into a powerful third party throughout the middlewest.

Conservative Republicans warned, however, that they would oppose forcefully LaFollette's campaign for renomination and re-election next fall.

Marks Farm-Labor Decline
The end of the third party movement in Wisconsin followed by several years the decline of Farmer-Labor activity in Minnesota and Iowa. LaFollette's brother, former Governor Philip M. LaFollette, organized the independent National Progressives in 1938 in the hope of uniting it with the Farmer-Laborites and the Dakota non-partisan groups for nationwide expansion.

He was not present at the party's official death here yesterday, when party delegates voted, 284 to 121, to rejoin the GOP. "Young Bob" LaFollette told the delegates that he had "no illusions about some of the elements in the Republican party." He reminded them that his record is "full of detailed denunciation of the old guard in the Republican party."

War Kills Hopes
But he said the war which eclipsed all domestic and state issues, "snuffed out the last hope for a national Progressive party at this time."

"All of the minority parties together" cast only about 400,000 votes in the 1944 presidential election," LaFollette said. "In the 75th Congress there were 17 minority-party members. Now there are only three—two of them Progressives."

LaFollette cited the fact that the Progressives polled only 76,000 votes, barely enough to meet legal requirements for staying on the ballot in 1944, as evidence that the party was no longer effective as a vehicle for making its principles effective. But he had to answer 61 delegates who wanted to join the Democrats and 67 who voted to maintain an independent Progressive party.

Democrats 'Stalled'
"In my opinion," he said, "the Democratic party is now stalled on dead-center. Although it is the party in power, with a clear majority in both houses of Congress, it has been unable to act with sufficient unity of purpose to meet the urgent problems of today."

"The Democratic party has become so enmeshed in bureaucratic control and intra-party wrangling that some of its leaders are resigning in disgust."

"The party emphasis today is more concerned with maintaining political control than with fighting for liberal legislation and progressive principles. The unmistakable signs of dissolution and disintegration are evident."

Liberalism Stressed
He assured the delegates that in returning to the GOP the Progressives do not propose to be bound to support reactionary candidates or principles any more than his father did 50 years ago in founding the Progressive movement as a left wing of the Republican party.

LaFollette said he had noticed rising liberal movement within Republican ranks "among such men as Gov. Walter S. Goodland of Wisconsin and Senators Wayne Morse of Oregon and George Aiken of Vermont."

CRUCIAL PHASE IN COAL TALKS

Operators Awaiting Definite Demands From Lewis On New Contract

WASHINGTON, March 18—Soft coal producers today entered a crucial phase in their negotiations for a new wage contract with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers (AFL).

The operators expected to complete presenting their case to the wage conference today and to settle down for secret bargaining sessions tomorrow.

They hoped a new contract could be reached without a strike on April 1 but admitted it was impossible to make any predictions until Lewis says specifically how much his miners want in dollars and cents.

Goering Denies Nazi Plan To Invade United States

NUERNBERG, March 18—Hermann Goering testified today that Nazi Germany never considered invading the United States.

Goering told the War Crimes Tribunal that Adolf Hitler and his war planners never developed a blueprint for invading any part of the North American continent.

"Even if Germany had completely dominated Europe," he said "because of the smallness of its fleet and its lack of long range bombers, a threat to the American continent was never spoken of. Contrarily, we always were afraid of danger from the other side."

The No. 2 Nazi, testifying for his fifth day in a fight to save his life, said also that the Nazis had never prepared for an economic penetration of South America.

Smiling slyly, the portly Goering said that economic penetration of South America was impossible because Germany "could never compete or endanger the United States and British position there."

"The mark was not the determining factor there—but the dollar," he said.

Goering defended German planning for future actions by citing alleged captured French documents. He asserted that these documents disclosed British and French plans in the summer of 1940 for widespread raids on neutral Soviet Baku and Romanian oilfields by flying over Turkey from Syria.

He followed his whitewash tactics for his fellow defendants by minimizing Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's role in Germany's prewar foreign policy.

"Only the Fuehrer and I could have conspired," Goering said. "No one else was concerned."

unidentified. Petiot told police after his arrest that he had been a member of the French underground movement, and as such had killed 63 persons, all Germans or small-time Gestapo agents.

The state sought to prove that Petiot preyed on helpless Jews and other fugitives from the Germans, promising them escape from Europe and then slaying them for their money and possessions in his sinister villa.

Among his alleged victims, the indictment said, were 14 Jews who disappeared after he allegedly promised to help them escape to Argentina. Others included notorious underworld characters and

Early Vote Returns Show Strong Sentiment Against Return To Work

By United Press
Thousands of General Motors employees continued their prolonged and costly walkout today, but in other industrial disputes San Francisco shipyard machinists voted to resume work and the first break appeared in the middle west's farm machinery strikes.

In the General Motors dispute, returns had been received from 34 local unions balloting on the new contract. Most of them approved the national contract, but 19 of the 34 voted to continue the walkout until local plant issues are settled.

92 Locals To Vote
The vote so far tabulated involved 89,500 strikers. There are 92 plants in the General Motors system, each with its local union.

Settlement of the San Francisco and farm machinery disputes reduced to less than 310,000 the number of workers idle in disputes across the nation. The major developments:

1. A strike of 10,000 machinists, which had kept idle an estimated 45,000 San Francisco Bay shipyard workers, was settled. The walkout had closed 150 Bay area shipyards and machine shops since Oct. 29, 1945.

2. Strikes at two plants of the Oliver Corp., farm equipment manufacturers, were ended. The strikes (Continued on Page Two)

Missing Malt Heiress, 16, Is Arrested In Michigan With Male Companion, 24

DETROIT, March 18—A week-long search for Suzanne Froedtert, 16-year-old heiress to a grain and malt fortune, ended today when she and a male companion were arrested at a rooming-house in suburban Highland Park.

The girl, daughter of wealthy Kurtis R. Froedtert, Milwaukee malt company magnate, had been sought by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and police of three states since her disappearance from an exclusive Madison-Wis., Boarding School March 11.

Found With Man
She was picked up with Ollie J. Williams, 24, whom she said she met at Madison shortly before her disappearance and with whom police said she appeared to be "quite taken in."

Lt. Ivan S. Brown of the Highland Park detective bureau said the two were picked up on a tip from Hillman Ide, 39, who said he was visiting friends at the Highland Park address when he thought he heard through a partition a voice calling "Sue."

Ide, Brown said, remembered hearing on a police radio broadcast that "a girl named Sue was missing" and called police "on a hunch."

Brown said the girl at first insisted she was "Sue Muer" and that she had a social security card made out in that name. Later, he said, she admitted her true identity readily.

(At Chicago Joseph W. Hicks, Froedtert public relations counsel, said he would fly to Detroit with Attorney Joseph E. Rapkin to make a "positive identification.")

He said Froedtert had been notified in Florida that a girl answering his daughter's description had been found.

Miss Froedtert was said to have arrived here last Thursday and to have taken a job in a candy store.

When taken into custody, Miss Froedtert was dressed smartly but had no wardrobe aside from the clothes she was wearing. She wore no jewelry. She had a dollar bill and some coins in her

Columbus Driver Captured After 90-Mile-An-Hour Chase Into City

Bernard Rice, 29, Columbus, accused of having failed to stop after a stolen car he was driving was involved in a minor collision at Bloomfield, was arrested at 3:30 a. m. Sunday after a 90-mile-an-hour chase from Bloomfield to Circleville by State Highway Patrol Trooper L. G. Ridenour and Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Vernon Pontius.

The officers said that on arriving in Circleville Rice flipped off his lights and sped through various side streets in an attempt to elude the two officers. He was finally captured on W. High street and placed in the county jail.

Sunday afternoon the automobile was identified as having been stolen in Columbus. Its owner, George Stevens, Columbus, came to Circleville Sunday night and took possession of the machine. Trooper Ridenour took Rice to Columbus, Monday, and turned him over to Columbus police.

and the whole left side of one body with only the foot missing.

In back of the house police discovered a small private room, apparently Petiot's office, with concealed peephole looking out onto the backyard and stables. In the yard itself they found an abandoned sewer filled with quicklime in which were buried more partly decomposed human remains.

The indictment said police were able to piece together bodies of at least five men and five women.

At a village outside Paris, in a barn belonging to a friend of Petiot, police discovered 39 trunks and suitcases filled with huge quantities of clothing.

Petiot was missing until October 13, 1944, when French military intelligence officers caught him.

The indictment described how Petiot told police that he long had been a member of a secret underground organization.

Petiot said he and his colleagues buried most of their victims in the Saint Cloud forest outside Paris or dumped them outside army billets. He told police that on a brief visit to his Rue Le Sueur home he had discovered bodies, which he claimed were planted by Germans.

Petiot admitted having attempted to burn the corpses he found

MACKENZIE KING TO REPORT ON RED ESPIONAGE

Canada Reported Considering Tass News Agency Ban, Diplomatic Break

OTTAWA, March 18—Premier Mackenzie-King will make a "full statement" on Soviet espionage in Canada to the House of Commons today. Observers believed his report might determine the future pattern of the Dominion's relations with Russia.

Additional fireworks were promised by Fred Rose, Communist member of parliament arrested in the investigation. Rose said he would "have his say" when Commons convenes today. However, any speech he would make would be contingent on his fellow representatives who could bar him from his seat until he has been cleared of suspicion.

Diplomatic Break Possible
The government was reported considering cancellation of privileges of the Tass (Soviet) News Agency in Canada and some observers even went so far as to predict that the investigation may result in a complete break in diplomatic relations between the Dominion and Russia.

Canada, it was pointed out, has made no secret of the fact that the activities of the espionage ring were directed from Moscow and has even quoted from secret Russian diplomatic dispatches to substantiate those charges.

Some observers predicted that Russia might retaliate by denouncing the six-year old Canadian defense pact at the forthcoming meeting of the United Nations Security Council in New York next week.

Churchill Clears Path
Russia's bitter denunciation of Winston Churchill's proposal for an Anglo-American military alliance in his Fulton, Mo., speech, cleared the way for protesting the Canadian pact with the United States, they said.

Soviet technique in the past has been to make a counter charge whenever any reflection has been cast upon its policies. Such was the case following the Canadian government's expose of the espionage ring.

Regardless of what King has to say in Commons, it is certain to draw the fire of opposition members who have questioned the government's method of handling suspects arrested.

Columbus Group Are Seriously Injured After Driver Falls Asleep

Four Columbus residents were in Grant hospital, Columbus, Monday, suffering from severe injuries sustained at 3 a. m. Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding swerved from State Route 104, three miles north of Fox, and went into a ditch. The car turned over and was badly damaged.

William Aleshire, 34, the driver, fell asleep just prior to the accident, according to State Highway Patrol Trooper L. G. Ridenour. His wife, Charlotte, 31, received numerous cuts and bruises. Earl White, 47, was thrown from the machine and he suffered numerous cuts and bruises. His wife, Virginia, 38, was cut and bruised.

The injured were removed to Berger hospital in the Deffenbaugh ambulance, which later removed them to the Columbus hospital.

ALLIES SEEKING NAZI FORTUNES IN SWITZERLAND

WASHINGTON, March 18—The western allies began an all-out effort today to track down the multi-million dollar fortunes cached by Nazi bigwigs outside of Germany.

American, French and British officials assembled for a series of negotiations with Swiss representatives over German external assets in Switzerland, estimated at from $250,000,000 to $750,000,000.

Chances of favorable congressional action seem slight unless Mr. Truman makes the fight of his life for action. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told a weekend New York audience that he and the President were alarmed by the possibility that the armed forces may fall below required strength.

Byrnes finds himself in the position of a foreign policy spokesman who has been compelled to speak loudly in foreign affairs without the backing of a military force of proportions likely to inspire respect abroad. When he says he is alarmed, he means it.

Nevertheless, in the senate there was developing sentiment to limit any selective service extension to July 1 despite administration pleas.

Iranian Army Moves Forces Into Tehran To Prevent Leftist Coup

GHAVAM'S CABINET SPLIT

Gromyko Due In Washington; Expected To Visit Both Truman, Byrnes

By United Press
The Big Three diplomatic crisis today showed signs of easing with developments crystallizing on the key factor in the Iran imbroglio—oil.

From behind the background of rumors and reports of troop movements, diplomatic protests and angry international polemics Iran's rich oil reserves were emerging as the focal point of trouble.

Soviet diplomats in Iran were reported engaged in a last minute effort to reach an agreement with Iranian Premier Ahmed Ghavam on the oil issue.

Quick Solution Sought
Their goal was believed to be an agreement which would enable them to appear before the United Nations security council March 25 with an announcement that Soviet difficulties with Iran had been solved.

Whether the Russians would succeed in this move was uncertain. Ghavam's cabinet is believed split on the subject of an agreement with Russia. Ghavam is regarded as not entirely opposed to the idea but his cabinet includes leaders with strong anti-Russian sentiment.

Tehran reported that Iranian army elements were moving into the capital, presumably as a precaution against a coup by eight right or left wing Tudeh party elements. The degree of reliability of the Iranian army was an uncertain factor in the situation. Many Iranian army leaders are strongly opposed to any concessions to Russia.

British Seek Answer
In London the British were said to be studying some plan for the internationalization of Iran's oil resources. The plan would not only relieve Iran of the difficulty of withstanding great power pressure but would afford controlled access to her oil resources and give Iran itself a greater share in the proceeds.

A British Spokesman said, however, that the question of Russian access to Iranian oil could not be raised until Red Army troops withdraw from Iran.

At present the only Iranian oil under exploitation is a huge south Iran concession held by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., which turned out 17,000,000 tons last year—the fourth largest oil production in the world. The British government is itself a large shareholder in this enterprise.

Russia, eager for more oil with which to spark her expanding industrial machine, has been persisting (Continued on Page Two)

TRUMAN FACING STIFF FIGHT ON DRAFT EXTENSION

WASHINGTON, March 18—President Truman's advisers are telling him today that we must have universal military training and extension of selective service to insure safety and back up the nation's foreign policy.

DETROIT, March 18—A week-long search for Suzanne Froedtert, 16-year-old heiress to a grain and malt fortune, ended today when she and a male companion were arrested at a rooming-house in suburban Highland Park.

The girl, daughter of wealthy Kurtis R. Froedtert, Milwaukee malt company magnate, had been sought by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and police of three states since her disappearance from an exclusive Madison-Wis., Boarding School March 11.

CULPRIT NABBED IN STOLEN AUTO

Columbus Driver Captured After 90-Mile-An-Hour Chase Into City

Bernard Rice, 29, Columbus, accused of having failed to stop after a stolen car he was driving was involved in a minor collision at Bloomfield, was arrested at 3:30 a. m. Sunday after a 90-mile-an-hour chase from Bloomfield to Circleville by State Highway Patrol Trooper L. G. Ridenour and Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Vernon Pontius.

The officers said that on arriving in Circleville Rice flipped off his lights and sped through various side streets in an attempt to elude the two officers. He was finally captured on W. High street and placed in the county jail.

Sunday afternoon the automobile was identified as having been stolen in Columbus. Its owner, George Stevens, Columbus, came to Circleville Sunday night and took possession of the machine. Trooper Ridenour took Rice to Columbus, Monday, and turned him over to Columbus police.

The indictment described how a resident of the Rue Le Sueur telephoned police on the evening of March 11, 1944, to report that thick clouds of evil smelling black smoke had been pouring for 24 hours from the chimney of No. 21, Petiot's home.

Police forced their way into the house and found it empty. Dust covered the furniture and books.

In the cellar they found two small furnaces, still burning. The indictment said they were filled with half-incinerated bits of human bodies and hair. Stacked on the floor were more human remains—heads, skulls, arms, feet, jawbones and the whole left side of one body with only the foot missing.

In back of the house police discovered a small private room, apparently Petiot's office, with concealed peephole looking out onto the backyard and stables. In the yard itself they found an abandoned sewer filled with quicklime in which were buried more partly decomposed human remains.

The indictment said police were able to piece together bodies of at least five men and five women. At a village outside Paris, in a barn belonging to a friend of Petiot, police discovered 39 trunks and suitcases filled with huge quantities of clothing.

possession. Williams had no money at all.

Brown said Williams was held for investigation on Mann Act charges and Miss Froedtert was held on a juvenile delinquency count and as a material witness.

The detective quoted Ide as saying he also overheard "someone mention a prison record." He said it was a man's voice—presumably Williams'.

Miss Froedtert disappeared March 11 from the Madison Boarding School and since then had been the object of a three-state search.

$5,285 NEEDED BY RED CROSS

Campaign Will Continue In Effort To Obtain $13,800 Quota

Because of the lagging of collections in the annual fund campaign of the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross and in the hope of attaining the goal of $13,800 set for the drive, Vaden Couch, general chairman, announced Monday that the campaign will be continued until the quota is reached.

The drive began March 1 and was originally scheduled to end last Friday night.

Couch said that collections, up to Monday morning, totaled only $8,515, leaving $5,285 yet to be raised in order to meet the goal of $13,800.

The 335 volunteer solicitors will continue their efforts, Couch explained. They include 85 in Circleville under direction of Joseph P. Noecker, city chairman, and 250 in the county outside of Circleville.

TIMKEN PLANT RESUMES WORK AFTER WALKOUT

COLUMBUS, March 18—Work was resumed today at the Columbus plant of the Timken Roller Bearing Company to end a strike that had idled 4,600 employees since January 21.

An armistice was declared late Saturday when the company and the United Steel Workers (CIO) agreed that work would be resumed under the 1943 contract while a new one could be negotiated.

Vet Admits Brutal Death Of Sister, Takes Own Life

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 18—Police wrote "case closed" against the brutal slaying of a young mother today after her brother, a veteran of World War II, fired a bullet into his tortured brain as he stood with three detectives in front of the court house. He died without telling why he killed her.

The nude and beaten body of Mrs. Dorothy Hickman, 23, was found early yesterday near her home. Her clothes had been ripped from her body and mud and sticks had been shoved into her mouth, apparently as a gag.

Her brother, Gordon La Londe, 27, who lived nearby in the drab river flats area of the Mississippi river, was arrested several hours later. As the police squad car drew up in front of police headquarters at the courthouse La Londe and the detectives stepped out.

La Londe leaped aside, drew a .38 caliber pistol from his pocket and shouted:

"I knew you'd get me."

As the detectives reached for their guns, he said:

"That won't be necessary. I'm not going to hurt you and I'm not going to run. I'm . . ."

Then he placed the muzzle against his right temple and fired. Mrs. Hickman was the mother of two children, aged 6 and 4. Her husband, Corp. Russell Hickman, is in the Ft. Lewis, Wash., army hospital recuperating from wounds received in Europe.

Petiot was missing until October 13, 1944, when French military intelligence officers caught him.

The indictment described how Petiot told police that he long had been a member of a secret underground organization.

Petiot said he and his colleagues buried most of their victims in the Saint Cloud forest outside Paris or dumped them outside army billets. He told police that on a brief visit to his Rue Le Sueur home he had discovered bodies, which he claimed were planted by Germans.

MACKENZIE KING TO REPORT ON RED ESPIONAGE

Canada Reported Considering Tass News Agency Ban, Diplomatic Break

OTTAWA, March 18—Premier Mackenzie-King will make a "full statement" on Soviet espionage in Canada to the House of Commons today. Observers believed his report might determine the future pattern of the Dominion's relations with Russia.

Additional fireworks were promised by Fred Rose, Communist member of parliament arrested in the investigation. Rose said he would "have his say" when Commons convenes today. However, any speech he would make would be contingent on his fellow representatives who could bar him from his seat until he has been cleared of suspicion.

Diplomatic Break Possible
The government was reported considering cancellation of privileges of the Tass (Soviet) News Agency in Canada and some observers even went so far as to predict that the investigation may result in a complete break in diplomatic relations between the Dominion and Russia.

Canada, it was pointed out, has made no secret of the fact that the activities of the espionage ring were directed from Moscow and has even quoted from secret Russian diplomatic dispatches to substantiate those charges.

Some observers predicted that Russia might retaliate by denouncing the six-year old Canadian defense pact at the forthcoming meeting of the United Nations Security Council in New York next week.

Churchill Clears Path
Russia's bitter denunciation of Winston Churchill's proposal for an Anglo-American military alliance in his Fulton, Mo., speech, cleared the way for protesting the Canadian pact with the United States, they said.

Soviet technique in the past has been to make a counter charge whenever any reflection has been cast upon its policies. Such was the case following the Canadian government's expose of the espionage ring.

Regardless of what King has to say in Commons, it is certain to draw the fire of opposition members who have questioned the government's method of handling suspects arrested.

CAR HITS DITCH, FOUR ARE HURT

Columbus Group Are Seriously Injured After Driver Falls Asleep

Four Columbus residents were in Grant hospital, Columbus, Monday, suffering from severe injuries sustained at 3 a. m. Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding swerved from State Route 104, three miles north of Fox, and went into a ditch. The car turned over and was badly damaged.

William Aleshire, 34, the driver, fell asleep just prior to the accident, according to State Highway Patrol Trooper L. G. Ridenour. His wife, Charlotte, 31, received numerous cuts and bruises. Earl White, 47, was thrown from the machine and he suffered numerous cuts and bruises. His wife, Virginia, 38, was cut and bruised.

The injured were removed to Berger hospital in the Deffenbaugh ambulance, which later removed them to the Columbus hospital.

ALLIES SEEKING NAZI FORTUNES IN SWITZERLAND

WASHINGTON, March 18—The western allies began an all-out effort today to track down the multi-million dollar fortunes cached by Nazi bigwigs outside of Germany.

American, French and British officials assembled for a series of negotiations with Swiss representatives over German external assets in Switzerland, estimated at from $250,000,000 to $750,000,000.

Chances of favorable congressional action seem slight unless Mr. Truman makes the fight of his life for action. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told a weekend New York audience that he and the President were alarmed by the possibility that the armed forces may fall below required strength.

Byrnes finds himself in the position of a foreign policy spokesman who has been compelled to speak loudly in foreign affairs without the backing of a military force of proportions likely to inspire respect abroad. When he says he is alarmed, he means it.

Nevertheless, in the senate there was developing sentiment to limit any selective service extension to July 1 despite administration pleas.

Iranian Army Moves Forces Into Tehran To Prevent Leftist Coup

GHAVAM'S CABINET SPLIT

Gromyko Due In Washington; Expected To Visit Both Truman, Byrnes

By United Press
The Big Three diplomatic crisis today showed signs of easing with developments crystallizing on the key factor in the Iran imbroglio—oil.

Frem behind the background of rumors and reports of troop movements, diplomatic protests and angry international polemics Iran's rich oil reserves were emerging as the focal point of trouble.

Soviet diplomats in Iran were reported engaged in a last minute effort to reach an agreement with Iranian Premier Ahmed Ghavam on the oil issue.

Quick Solution Sought
Their goal was believed to be an agreement which would enable them to appear before the United Nations security council March 25 with an announcement that Soviet difficulties with Iran had been solved.

Whether the Russians would succeed in this move was uncertain. Ghavam's cabinet is believed split on the subject of an agreement with Russia. Ghavam is regarded as not entirely opposed to the idea but his cabinet includes leaders with strong anti-Russian sentiment.

Tehran reported that Iranian army elements were moving into the capital, presumably as a precaution against a coup by eight right or left wing Tudeh party elements. The degree of reliability of the Iranian army was an uncertain factor in the situation. Many Iranian army leaders are strongly opposed to any concessions to Russia.

British Seek Answer
In London the British were said to be studying some plan for the internationalization of Iran's oil resources. The plan would not only relieve Iran of the difficulty of withstanding great power pressure but would afford controlled access to her oil resources and give Iran itself a greater share in the proceeds.

A British Spokesman said, however, that the question of Russian access to Iranian oil could not be raised until Red Army troops withdrew from Iran.

At present the only Iranian oil under exploitation is a huge south Iran concession held by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., which turned out 17,000,000 tons last year—the fourth largest oil production in the world. The British government is itself a large shareholder in this enterprise.

Russia, eager for more oil with which to spark her expanding industrial machine, has been persistent (Continued on Page Two)

TRUMAN FACING STIFF FIGHT ON DRAFT EXTENSION

WASHINGTON, March 18—President Truman's advisers are telling him today that he must have universal military training and extension of selective service to insure safety and back up the nation's foreign policy.

Chances of favorable congressional action seem slight unless Mr. Truman makes the fight of his life for action. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told a weekend New York audience that he and the President were alarmed by the possibility that the armed forces may fall below required strength.

Byrnes finds himself in the position of a foreign policy spokesman who has been compelled to speak loudly in foreign affairs without the backing of a military force of proportions likely to inspire respect abroad. When he says he is alarmed, he means it.

tently seeking oil concessions in northern Iran.

Washington Hunts Method
Another effort to open the way to a settlement of the Iran issue before the security council meeting was believed to be underway in Washington.

Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko was due back at his post there today after many months of absence. He is expected to head the Soviet security council delegation. This week he is expected to visit both President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes for courtesy calls which also will afford an opportunity to sound out diplomatic possibilities.

There was almost a complete blackout on news from Tehran where officials were making a major effort to dry up the flood of conflicting and sometimes unconfirmable rumors.

Churchill Plan Rejected

Byrnes' specific rejection of Winston Churchill's proposal for an Anglo-American alliance directed against Russia and his parallel rejection of any thought of an American-Russian alliance against Britain emphasized the reliance which the United States was placing in the United Nations Organization as the central force for preserving postwar peace and security.

The Moscow radio issued a new blast at the proposed Greek elections which it said would establish a new Fascist government in western Europe, but had no new comment on the Iranian situation.

WOMAN WRECK VICTIM RESCUED AFTER ORDEAL

LOS ANGELES, March 18—A 43-year-old woman, rescued by the coast guard after two weeks on an uninhabited island off the Southern California coast, today told of a shipwreck in which her husband and a friend presumably perished.

Mrs. Bernice Brown, Van Nuys, Cal., was rescued yesterday by a coast guard crash boat. She was taken from rocky Anacapa Island, 25 miles west of Santa Monica, Cal., after her daughter, Mrs. Maxine Trauer, reported that her parents were five days overdue from a fishing trip.

Signal Fire Sighted
Sighting the signal fire she had kept burning continuously on the beach for nine days, coast guardsmen returned Mrs. Brown to Port Hueneme, Cal., where Navy doctors said she had recovered sufficiently from her ordeal to be taken home.

She told of setting out March 2 with her husband, Roy Brown, 42, and John Barta, 38, Long Beach, Cal., on a 10-day fishing trip in the 50-foot fishing boat Nancy Lee. They had expected to return to Santa Monica March 11 or 12.

The next day the boat ran into a gale which whipped up huge rollers that flooded the engine room and left the craft at the mercy of the sea.

Skiff Capsizes
"We cast off a small skiff," she said. "My husband held the painter while Johnny and I got in. Another wave washed my husband overboard. He swam to the skiff. He got hold of it but the skiff capsized."

"When I came up, I managed to swim to the fishing boat which was now swamped and got on the bow. A huge wave washed me away as though I was a fly. When I came up again, both Roy and Johnny were gone."

Struggling against the waves, Mrs. Brown said she sighted two floating gas drums, one of which she grasped, the sharp edges cutting her hands to the bone.

Finds Emergency Hut
All afternoon and until nightfall she clung to the drum until it was washed close to a rock on which she took refuge. She lay there semi-conscious until the morning of March 4 when she swam 300 yards to Anacapa Island and found a hut stocked with emergency rations, water, a stove, blankets and a battery radio. It apparently had been established by the Navy.

The next four days, Mrs. Brown said she was barely able to move enough to obtain food but on March 8 she was able to build the first of her signal fires.

Several boats passed without sighting her fire, she said, and she was becoming worried about her food supplies when rescue arrived.

On the slight chance of finding Brown and Barta alive, the coast guard detailed two boats and a patrol plane to search for them.

DRUNK DRIVING CHARGES FACE 2 SEIZED SUNDAY

Two motorists charged with driving when intoxicated were arrested Sunday in Circleville by police.

Harold Allen, 33, mill worker, 526 E. Franklin street, was taken into custody at 12:10 a.m. on E. Main street, and Ray E. Elias, 46, brakeman, Columbus, was arrested at 2 p.m. on N. Court street.

The two were placed in the city jail to await arraignment before Mayor Ben H. Gordon. The arrests were made by Patrolman Carl Radcliff and Turney Ross.

TRUMAN DELAYS NAVAL CHANGES

Persuades Forrestal To Stay At Helm Until July 1, Pending Merger

WASHINGTON, March 18—President Truman has persuaded Assistant Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan was thinking of resigning soon. They said Sullivan had been promised, though he did not ask for it, the post of Undersecretary of the Navy and later Forrestal's job. Instead, President Truman named Edwin W. Pauley, whose nomination was subsequently withdrawn after a bitter controversy.

Sullivan, however, was still reported in the running for the undersecretary's position. He is being supported by Chairman David I. Walsh, D. Mass., of the Senate naval affairs committee. Members of the house naval affairs committee have indicated a preference for former Governor Colgate W. Darden of Virginia. Joseph E. Kennedy, former U. S. ambassador to England, also has some support in the senate.

Westinghouse Stymied
Negotiations to settle the Westinghouse Electric strike were stymied, but were scheduled to be resumed Tuesday.

4. Strike threats against two of three major rubber producers at Akron were removed at least temporarily. Local CIO United Rubber Workers unions voted to accept an 18-1/2 cent hourly raise at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and the Goodrich Rubber Co. In the General Motors controversy, the biggest back-to-work movement among the 175,000 strikers was in Michigan, where 28,000 employees in eight plants voted to go back to work today.

Clash On Local Issues
Of the 15 GM locals voting to return to work, 11 approved settlement of both national and local issues. One local, the Fisher Body unit at Baltimore, Md., rejected both the national and local settlements.

In the San Francisco Bay settlement, two unions voted to accept wage proposals to end their four and one-half month strike, accepting a 17-1/2 cent hourly increase at machine shops and an 18-cent hourly raise in shipyards with an 11-1/2 per cent increase for repair work.

The Oliver Corp. settlements were based on an 18-cent per hour raise.

ON THE GLOOMY SIDE
There are not nearly enough fats in the country to make all the soaps, soap powders, and soap flakes you want. So short is the supply, the government must decide how much fat can be released to make soap and other peacetime goods.

Besides, the supplies of soaps many of you housewives have had in reserve are running low — and the demand for soaps is increasing.

ON THE BRIGHT SIDE
Most of you housewives have continued to turn in fats. You've helped keep our industrial fat supply large enough to meet minimum needs.

But it's a close race. Any letdown on your part can mean less soap for everybody.

By turning in used fats you're helping to bring back bigger supplies of scarce soaps. Keep on the job, get 4¢ for every pound.

MACKENZIE KING TO REPORT ON RED ESPIONAGE

nounced that he will lead such an attack on the premier.

Procedure Assailed
"The refusal of habeas corpus proceedings, the holding of men without a legal charge against them, without right of bail and without the right of counsel is a serious matter to all who pride themselves on the principles of British justice," Bracken said.

However, it was expected that King would defend the procedure on the grounds that the two royal commissioners investigating the espionage activities are members of the supreme court and the methods employed were justified because any other would have defeated the purpose of the inquiry.

Still further arrests were expected since the second interim report of the royal commission investigating the spy ring said that the conspiracy had not been smashed completely.

Fifteen Canadians, including a noted McGill University scientist, have been arrested and the report said that "other Canadians, who are not government officials, have been intermediaries through whom secret and confidential information has reached the Russian embassy."

Radar, Atom Leaks Hunted
The report indicated that other suspects would be dealt with "at a later stage, as the evidence develops."

The report accused the spies of obtaining information on atomic development, radar, new high explosives and U. S. and Canadian troop movements.

Rose, the only member of Parliament to be embroiled publicly in the activities of the spy ring, was arrested last week and was released on $10,000 bond following his arraignment in police court. He was scheduled to speak at a Labor party rally in Montreal last night but the address was cancelled when police closed the hall.

Tass Ex-Chief Accused
Possibility that the government might cancel the privileges of Tass News Agency followed the charge that its former Ottawa chief, Nikolai Shiveyev, was engaged in espionage activities.

The parliamentary press gallery already has expressed the "strongest condemnation" of Shiveyev who "while posing as a bonafide newspaperman and a member of the press gallery, engaged in secret activities under a code name for and on behalf of Soviet government agencies other than the news agency by which he was accredited."

BRITISH INSIST RUSSIANS MUST LEAVE COUNTRY

tently seeking oil concessions in northern Iran.

Washington Hunts Method

Another effort to open the way to a settlement of the Iran issue before the security council meeting was believed to be underway in Washington.

Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko was due back at his post there today after many months of absence. He is expected to head the Soviet security council delegation. This week he is expected to visit both President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes for courtesy calls which also will afford an opportunity to sound out diplomatic possibilities.

There was almost a complete blackout on news from Tehran where officials were making a major effort to dry up the flood of conflicting and sometimes unfavourable rumors.

Churchill Plan Rejected
Byrnes' specific rejection of Winston Churchill's proposal for an Anglo-American alliance directed against Russia and his parallel rejection of any thought of an American-Russian alliance against Britain emphasized the reliance which the United States was placing in the United Nations Organization as the central force for preserving postwar peace and security.

The Moscow radio issued a new blast at the proposed Greek elections which it said would establish a new Fascist government in western Europe, but had no new comment on the Iranian situation.

MACKENZIE KING TO REPORT ON RED ESPIONAGE

nounced that he will lead such an attack on the premier.

Procedure Assailed
"The refusal of habeas corpus proceedings, the holding of men without a legal charge against them, without right of bail and without the right of counsel is a serious matter to all who pride themselves on the principles of British justice," Bracken said.

However, it was expected that King would defend the procedure on the grounds that the two royal commissioners investigating the espionage activities are members of the supreme court and the methods employed were justified because any other would have defeated the purpose of the inquiry.

Still further arrests were expected since the second interim report of the royal commission investigating the spy ring said that the conspiracy had not been smashed completely.

Fifteen Canadians, including a noted McGill University scientist, have been arrested and the report said that "other Canadians, who are not government officials, have been intermediaries through whom secret and confidential information has reached the Russian embassy."

Radior, Atom Leaks Hunted
The report indicated that other suspects would be dealt with "at a later stage, as the evidence develops."

The report accused the spies of obtaining information on atomic development, radar, new high explosives and U. S. and Canadian troop movements.

Rose, the only member of Parliament to be embroiled publicly in the activities of the spy ring, was arrested last week and was released on $10,000 bond following his arraignment in police court. He was scheduled to speak at a Labor party rally in Montreal last night but the address was cancelled when police closed the hall.

Tass Ex-Chief Accused
Possibility that the government might cancel the privileges of Tass News Agency followed the charge that its former Ottawa chief, Nikolai Shivenov, was engaged in espionage activities.

The parliamentary press gallery already has expressed the "strongest condemnation" of Shivenov who "while posing as a bonafide newspaperman and a member of the press gallery, engaged in secret activities under a code name for and on behalf of Soviet government agencies other than the news agency by which he was accredited."

WOMAN WRECK VICTIM RESCUED AFTER ORDEAL

LOS ANGELES, March 18—A 43-year-old woman, rescued by the coast guard after two weeks on an uninhabited island off the Southern California coast, today told of a shipwreck in which her husband and a friend presumably perished.

Mrs. Bernice Brown, Van Nuys, Cal., was rescued yesterday by a coast guard crash boat. She was taken from rocky Anacapa Island, 25 miles west of Santa Monica, Cal., after her daughter, Mrs. Maxine Tracer, reported that her parents were five days overdue from a fishing trip.

Signal Fire Sighted
Sighting the signal fire she had kept burning continuously on the beach for nine days, coast guardsmen returned Mrs. Brown to Port Hueneme, Cal., where Navy doctors said she had recovered sufficiently from her ordeal to be taken home.

She told of setting out March 2 with her husband, Roy Brown, 42, and John Barta, 38, Long Beach, Cal., on a 10-day fishing trip in the 50-foot fishing boat Nancy Lee. They had expected to return to Santa Monica March 11 or 12.

The next day the boat ran into a gale which whipped up huge rollers that flooded the engine room and left the craft at the mercy of the sea.

Skiff Capsizes
"We cast off a small skiff," she said. "My husband held the painter while Johnny and I got in. Another wave washed my husband overboard. He swam to the skiff. He got hold of it but the skiff capsized."

"When I came up, I managed to swim to the fishing boat which was now swamped and got on the bow. A huge wave washed me away as though I was a fly. When I came up again, both Roy and Johnny were gone."

Struggling against the waves, Mrs. Brown said she sighted two floating gas drums, one of which she grasped, the sharp edges cutting her hands to the bone.

Finds Emergency Hut
All afternoon and until nightfall she clung to the drum until it was washed close to a rock on which she took refuge. She lay there semi-conscious until the morning of March 4 when she swam 300 yards to Anacapa Island and found a hut stocked with emergency rations, water, a stove, blankets and a battery radio. It apparently had been established by the Navy.

The next four days, Mrs. Brown said she was barely able to move enough to obtain food but on March 8 she was able to build the first of her signal fires.

Several boats passed without sighting her fire, she said, and she was becoming worried about her food supplies when rescue arrived.

On the slight chance of finding Brown and Barta alive, the coast guard detailed two boats and a patrol plane to search for them.

Harold Allen, 33, mill worker, 526 E. Franklin street, was taken into custody at 12:10 a.m. on E. Main street, and Ray E. Elias, 46, brakeman, Columbus, was arrested at 2 p.m. on N. Court street.

The two were placed in the city jail to await arraignment before Mayor Ben H. Gordon. The arrests were made by Patrolman Carl Radcliff and Turney Ross.

TRUMAN DELAYS NAVAL CHANGES

Persuades Forrestal To Stay At Helm Until July 1, Pending Merger

WASHINGTON, March 18—President Truman has persuaded Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal to remain in the cabinet until July 1, it was learned today.

But despite Forrestal's decision to delay his resignation for another two or three months, the top civilian leadership of the Navy remains disgruntled over White House support for merger of the armed forces and other recent administration moves.

Congressional sources said that Assistant Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan was thinking of resigning soon. They said Sullivan had been promised, though he did not ask for it, the post of Undersecretary of the Navy and later Forrestal's job. Instead, President Truman named Edwin W. Pauley, whose nomination was subsequently withdrawn after a bitter controversy.

Sullivan, however, was still reported in the running for the undersecretary's position. He is being supported by Chairman David I. Walsh, D. Mass., of the Senate naval affairs committee. Members of the house naval affairs committee have indicated a preference for former Governor Colgate W. Darden of Virginia. Joseph E. Kennedy, former U. S. ambassador to England, also has some support in the senate.

Westinghouse Stymied
3. Negotiations to settle the Westinghouse Electric strike were stymied, but were scheduled to be resumed Tuesday.

4. Strike threats against two of three major rubber producers at Akron were removed at least temporarily. Local CIO United Rubber Workers unions voted to accept an 18-1/2 cent hourly raise at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and the Goodrich Rubber Co. In the General Motors controversy, the biggest back-to-work movement among the 175,000 strikers was in Michigan, where 28,000 employees in eight plants voted to go back to work today.

Clash On Local Issues
Of the 15 GM locals voting to return to work, 11 approved settlement of both national and local issues. One local, the Fisher Body unit at Baltimore, Md., rejected both the national and local settlements.

In the San Francisco Bay settlement, two unions voted to accept wage proposals to end their four and one-half month strike, accepting a 17-1/2 cent hourly increase at machine shops and an 18-cent hourly raise in shipyards with an 11.6 per cent increase for repair work.

The Oliver Corp. settlements were based on an 18-cent per hour raise.

TEACHERS URGED TO HEAR SPEECH BY NATURALIST

NYLONS SHIPPED TO MEXICO NET UP TO $50 PAIR

648,000 Pairs Make Journey Across Border Recently; Consignments Legal

PHILADELPHIA, March 18—Some of those nylons you can't get are being shipped to Mexico where they bring prices ranging up to $50 a pair, it was learned today.

At least 648,000 pairs have been shipped into Mexico during the last two weeks, it was reported.

68 Cartons Sent

Officials at the Southwest Philadelphia airport said 68 cartons of the hose were flown from there Saturday and at least 12 cartons, containing 2,160 pairs each, have been shipped directly into Mexico.

Most of the shipments are consigned to Brownsville, Dallas, Fort Worth and Corpus Christi, Tex., for ultimate transfer across the border, it was said.

An airline employee at Dallas told the United Press that 1,200 pounds of nylons were flown to Corpus Christi yesterday. They were destined for sale in Mexico, he said, and another 2,200 pounds were at the terminal awaiting shipment.

Stacked in Aisles

"They are stacked in the seats and in the aisles," he said.

Employees at the Philadelphia airport said some of the nylons came from New York but that most of them were manufactured in Philadelphia.

One shipment was brought from New York by three men in an automobile, they said, and the name of the shipper was the same as the one which appeared on a large consignment sent to Texas cities from Cleveland.

Shipping Is Legal

Another consignment of 50 cases arrived in Philadelphia from a New York candy company, employees said, but it was not shipped because it had not been properly processed through an express agency.

Shipping the nylons across the border where there are no price ceilings is perfectly legal, it was pointed out. Authorities at Brownsville, Tex., said they could pass border inspection as long as the proper duties were paid on them.

Fowler Murder, Disappearance Of Wife Passes Into Limbo Of Unsolved Crimes

Murder of Guy B. Fowler, 47, and the disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, of Circleville, may forever remain an unsolved mystery.

Fowler was killed with a shotgun in his home at 2185 Sale Road, Columbus, on the night of January 15, 1943. At that time Mrs. Fowler dropped from sight.

Several theories have been expounded concerning Fowler's slaying and the disappearance of Mrs. Fowler. One is that she killed him and then fled. Another is that both were murdered and that her body was hidden to cast suspicion upon her.

Was Mrs. Fowler Slain

A third theory is that while Mrs. Fowler did not commit the actual killing, she was implicated in it and was murdered later to seal her lips.

Mrs. Fowler, a daughter of John Bates, residing at the rear of the Winorr Canning Co. factory, lived most of her life in Circleville. She was married in 1938 to Fowler, who also was known as Guy Huffman and Guy Huffer. Mrs. Fowler's mother died in Circleville in 1941.

In Columbus Mrs. Fowler was known as Norma Fowler. She and her husband were war workers at the time of the murder and disappearance.

Fowler's lifeless body was found wrapped in blood-stained towels and bed clothing. It had been stuffed into a cedar chest which he had given to his wife as a Christmas gift.

Inscription Ironic

Ironically, an inscription on the cedar chest read: "A Lifetime of Happiness."

Discovery of the body was made by Wayne Morris, Columbus, a son-in-law of Fowler. On Jan. 17, 1943, after Fowler had failed for 48 hours to report for work at the Columbus Quartermaster Depot, Morris went to the Fowler home. He found blood-stained clothing on the back porch. Fowler's automobile was parked in the driveway. Mrs. Fowler's car was in the garage.

Morris investigated and made the gruesome find in the cedar chest.

Officially, Mrs. Fowler has never been seen or heard from since the slaying of her husband although Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Circleville Police Chief W. F. McCrady said that on several occasions they received "tips" that she had been in Circleville. On each such occasion, they said, efforts to locate Mrs. Fowler or to find anyone who definitely had seen her proved futile.

Father Recalls Last Visit

Shortly after the killing her father in Circleville told officials he had not seen his daughter since Dec. 24, 1942 when she came to his home and borrowed a shotgun with the explanation that she planned to go hunting.

IT'S ALL GREEK BUT OPA WANTS ENGLISH PRICES

Carson Dresbach, operator of the Fox Farm on the Chillicothe pike, must post ceiling prices in English instead of in Greek.

This was disclosed Monday by an official order issued by the Cincinnati district office of the OPA.

John Grant, Cincinnati OPA price attorney, said an investigation showed that Dresbach objected to posting his prices.

"After some persuasion", Grant declared, "he put up the poster but it was printed in Greek. Dresbach said he had consulted an attorney who advised him that regulations did not say the poster had to be in English. Now he knows differently."

Grant explained that the area where Dresbach's tavern is located cannot be considered a Greek speaking community.

The OPA ruling decrees that all taverns and restaurants in English speaking communities must post their price lists in English.

SOFTER WATER SERVICE OPENS

Air Veteran To Provide Monthly Plan Without Buying Equipment

A new company with a new method of providing soft water for the home was opened today by Ray Goetting. This new business, the Culligan Soft Water Service, is situated at 848 North Court street.

Soft water is now available in this community on a public service basis without purchasing water softening equipment, according to Goetting. He undertakes to put his equipment into homes, beauty shops, restaurants, etc., and service it at regular intervals with no investment, work or bother on the customer's part. A modest monthly service charge takes care of everything. There is a small starting charge.

Goetting, 28, is a native of Minnesota. He comes to Circleville from Fremont. He is married and has one child, a daughter. The Goettings will reside on South Court street.

The owner of the new Circleville enterprise served five years in the Army Air Forces, and has only recently been discharged. He was a captain.

Interested persons are invited to inspect the plant and processes.

NYLONS SHIPPED TO MEXICO NET UP TO $50 PAIR

648,000 Pairs Make Journey Across Border Recently; Consignments Legal

PHILADELPHIA, March 18—Some of those nylons you can't get are being shipped to Mexico where they bring prices ranging up to $50 a pair, it was learned today.

At least 648,000 pairs have been shipped into Mexico during the last two weeks, it was reported.

68 Cartons Sent

Officials at the Southwest Philadelphia airport said 68 cartons of the hose were flown from there Saturday and at least 12 cartons, containing 2,160 pairs each, have been shipped directly into Mexico.

Most of the shipments are consigned to Brownsville, Dallas, Fort Worth and Corpus Christi, Tex., for ultimate transfer across the border, it was said.

An airline employee at Dallas told the United Press that 1,200 pounds of nylons were flown to Corpus Christi yesterday. They were destined for sale in Mexico, he said, and another 2,200 pounds were at the terminal awaiting shipment.

Stacked in Aisles

"They are stacked in the seats and in the aisles," he said. Employees at the Philadelphia airport said some of the nylons came from New York but that most of them were manufactured in Philadelphia.

One shipment was brought from New York by three men in an automobile, they said, and the name of the shipper was the same as the one which appeared on a large consignment sent to Texas cities from Cleveland.

Shipping Is Legal

Another consignment of 50 cases arrived in Philadelphia from a New York candy company, employees said, but it was not shipped because it had not been properly processed through an express agency.

Shipping the nylons across the border where there are no price ceilings is perfectly legal, it was pointed out. Authorities at Brownsville, Tex., said they could pass border inspection as long as the proper duties were paid on them.

Fowler Murder, Disappearance Of Wife Passes Into Limbo Of Unsolved Crimes

Murder of Guy B. Fowler, 47, and the disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, of Circleville, may forever remain an unsolved mystery.

Fowler was killed with a shotgun in his home at 2185 Sale Road, Columbus, on the night of January 15, 1943. At that time Mrs. Fowler dropped from sight.

Several theories have been expounded concerning Fowler's slaying and the disappearance of Mrs. Fowler. One is that she killed him and then fled. Another is that both were murdered and that her body was hidden to cast suspicion upon her.

Was Mrs. Fowler Slain

A third theory is that while Mrs. Fowler did not commit the actual killing, she was implicated in it and was murdered later to seal her lips.

Mrs. Fowler, a daughter of John Bates, residing at the rear of the Winorr Canning Co. factory, lived most of her life in Circleville. She was married in 1938 to Fowler, who also was known as Guy Huffman and Guy Huffer. Mrs. Fowler's mother died in Circleville in 1941.

In Columbus Mrs. Fowler was known as Norma Fowler. She and her husband were workers at the time of the murder and disappearance.

Fowler's lifeless body was found wrapped in blood-stained towels and bed clothing. It had been stuffed into a cedar chest which he had given to his wife as a Christmas gift.

Inscription Ironie

Ironically, an inscription on the cedar chest read: "A Lifetime of Happiness."

Discovery of the body was made by Wayne Morris, Columbus, a son-in-law of Fowler. On Jan. 17, 1943, after Fowler had failed for 48 hours to report for work at the Columbus Quartermaster Depot, Morris went to the Fowler home. He found blood-stained clothing on the back porch. Fowler's automobile was parked in the driveway. Mrs. Fowler's car was in the garage.

Morris investigated and made the gruesome find in the cedar chest.

Officially, Mrs. Fowler has never been seen or heard from since the slaying of her husband although Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Circleville Police Chief W. F. McCrady said that on several occasions they received "tips" that she had been in Circleville. On each such occasion, they said, efforts to locate Mrs. Fowler or to find anyone who def-

IT'S ALL GREEK BUT OPA WANTS ENGLISH PRICES

Carson Dresbach, operator of the Fox Farm on the Chillicothe pike, must post ceiling prices in English instead of in Greek.

This was disclosed Monday by an official order issued by the Cincinnati district office of the OPA.

John Grant, Cincinnati OPA price attorney, said an investigation showed that Dresbach objected to posting his prices.

"After some persuasion," Grant declared, "he put up the poster but it was printed in Greek. Dresbach said he had consulted an attorney who advised him that regulations did not say the poster had to be in English. Now he knows differently."

Grant explained that the area where Dresbach's tavern is located cannot be considered a Greek speaking community.

The OPA ruling decrees that all taverns and restaurants in English speaking communities must post their price lists in English.

initely had seen her proved futile.

Father Recalls Last Visit

Shortly after the killing her father in Circleville told officials he had not seen his daughter since Dec. 24, 1942 when she came to his home and borrowed a shotgun with the explanation that she planned to go hunting.

Some children living near the scene of the murder in Columbus found a shotgun in a field and sold it to a milkman for 25 cents, according to a report from the office of the sheriff of Franklin County. However, the weapon was never definitely identified as the shotgun Bates said his daughter had borrowed from him the day before Christmas.

Franklin County Coroner Edward Smith said Fowler probably was slain while he slept.

Mysterious angles of the disappearance of Mrs. Fowler include the fact that all of her wearing apparel was missing from her Columbus home when her husband's body was discovered, and also that her car was left in the garage.

Auto Puzzles Police

It has been pointed out that if Mrs. Fowler planned and executed the murder of her husband she hardly would have fled and left behind her a perfect means of transportation.

A CHANCE FOR CONGRESS

CONGRESS will soon have its sincerity tested. The La Follette-Monroney committee, created last year to study the working of Congress and to suggest improvements, has made its report. Congress can now accept it, improve on it, or do what a good many people fear it will do.

The report would reduce Senate Committees from 33 to 16, those in the House from 48 to 18. This would eliminate a great many bodies whose only purpose is to give their chairmen comfortable offices. Congress would have to keep appropriations within the federal income, or else specifically vote in favor of increasing the public debt. Committee hearings on spending bills would be public; now they are secret. Congressional salaries would be increased from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, with provisions for pensions after a certain minimum service and age, and with provision for extra office help in the meantime.

While the report does not even mention the seniority system of appointing committee chairmen, which encourages the nonentity and the misfit, it has many good features. Unfortunately a certain type of congressman is interested in the increased salary and help provisions, and opposed to the rest.

What Congress does about this report will show whether the majority are interested in anything except their own pockets.

SCHOOL LUNCH

IT is natural to wonder what George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and a lot of their contemporaries and descendants would think of the United States government voting 100 million dollars a year for school lunches, served free to the school boys and girls of their time. Or one-tenth of that.

It is not quite clear how the lunch problem was served then; but perhaps it can be assumed that the boys and girls carried their lunches, or walked home for them, as was done generally until the last generation or two. The tradition of the school dinner pail has persisted, but the reality grows dimmer with the lapse of time. The tin pail was a notable advance on the paper bag, at a time when paper was seldom available. But as many fathers and grandfathers well remember, it was nothing to walk home for noon dinner a mile or more and back again.

Now—a hundred million dollars a year for school lunches, coming freely out of the capacious purse of Uncle Sam! Gosh, what appetites these present-day youngsters must have! Do they really eat their noon-day victuals as their parents and grandparents did? Do they eat the crusts? Many of us would like to know.

Yes, we know the appropriation is only for children of the needy and we approve it. But things like that do set a fellow wondering about lots of things.

Whether in war or politics, appeasement seldom pays.

Wisconsin Tagged With Rattlesnake Label

BY JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, March 18—The residents of Wisconsin aren't going to like this, but it's time they knew they aren't living in the "Badger State." So far as Broadway is concerned, Wisconsin is the "Rattlesnake State." That's the way it will go down in theatrical history as a result of a new musical called "Three to Make Ready" revue. There's a song in the show called "We're Leaving Wisconsin, the Rattlesnake State" and that ought to settle it.

Miss Nancy Hamilton, who perpetrated this switch, wants residents of the state to know that there was no malice aforethought; the thing just sort of happened in the line of artistic duty.

"I hope they won't bar me from the state," she said. "Actually I suppose Wisconsin is a wonderful state. Isn't it? Anyway, that's where all the wonderful cheese comes from. And we mention the cheese in the song. Maybe they'll forgive me when they know about that advertising plug."

The rattlesnake song is the last one of the first act finale. This finale is an involved and amusing parody of those two great Oscar Hammerstein-Richard Rodgers-Theater Guild Hits, "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel," both of which have strong regional flavor and are based on well-known plays. Miss Hamilton and her composer, Morgan Lewis, needed a state that had neither the exact flavor of the west nor of New England, yet in which they could frame appropriately their satirical version of characters from both regions.

"We thought at first that we'd use a northern state and have the characters in lumberjack costumes," she explained. "The lumberjack thing didn't work out but somehow—frankly, I can't give you any real reason—we picked Wisconsin. It might just as well have been something else.

"Then when it came to write-ing the words for the song, I looked up to see what the state's nickname was. It was the Badger State. Well, there weren't enough syllables in 'Badger' to fit the notes, so I had to change it. 'Rattlesnake' popped into my head, it fitted, and we used it."

The town of Kenosha, Wis., might like to know that it figures in the number because the over-all name for the finale is "Wisconsin, or Kenosha Canoe." A fellow takes a girl out in a canoe and drowns her so he can have another girl. Of course, this calls for the Hamilton apologies to Kenosha also.

"I'm sure no one in Kenosha would do such a thing," she said. "Even if Lake Michigan is so handy."

Actually Wisconsin should feel pretty good about the publicity. New Yorkers, who are a bit vague about that real estate west of the Hudson river, have heard about it at last.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 18—The volume of national cheering was suspiciously limited at the breaking of the key strikes in motors and electric. Labor Secretary Schwelienbach emitted one long hurrah, but the initial statements from both sides were definitely vague and completely unenthusiastic, while the nation's cheering section as a whole seemed more concerned about asking who won and what it all meant.

No one won.

The deeper my inquiries led me to the inside of the matter, the clearer it became that the auto strike deadlock was not a matter of difference in wages, or "man-power", or any other advertised details of the conflict—but involved one single question.

That question was whether the CIO was to be a supra-business directorate in the same way it has sought to become a supra-government. In plainer language: Was CIO to be the boss and run the business, as it has attempted to be boss of government and run it?

Clearly CIO lost ground on that proposition. Its initial plan was to open the company books, determine company profits by this and future wage demands and make the concern subservient to union-economics by preventing the company from getting any price increase to meet these demands. These pressure moves appear to have been broken all along the line. The settlement mentions no book inspection and the initial statements avoided also the subject of wages and profits. Indeed, the government announced just before the break that any future auto price increases would be made retroactive and could be collected from the consumer after the sale—which suggests there may be price increases despite the union announcement to the contrary.

The CIO spell of domination has therefore been broken—but for how long? Motors got a two year contract, but Schwelienbach suggested it provided reopening of wage considerations in one year. The steel settlement was for one year. The pattern of all other current labor agreements is similarly one year, based also on the same wage increase. They plainly allow, therefore, for reopening the general strike campaign at that time.

Is this basic settlement then but a one year truce in the CIO campaign to create a supra-business dictatorship? Will all the familiar pressures of CIO upon business and government be renewed 12 months hence in the same revolutionary form, or even stronger form?

These are the questions which the settlement left lurking in the minds of thinking people and explains why the nation's cheering was considerably short of enthusiastic.

The agreements failed to achieve a permanent promise of continued production—in short a solution. But it certainly represents the first important progress toward that goal in many a past year. For one thing management did not cave in timidly in the face of pressures to absorb it, but broke them.

General Motors stood its ground and thus pointed the way toward a new and democratic technique for management which has been on the run for a long time. Also it beat the strategic union plan to isolate it from its competitors. Ford and Chrysler could not take advantage of GM's troubles because they could not get basic materials for production.

FAVOR THE SUIT BID

"IF YOUR only singly-stopped short suit is a doubleton or trebleton topped by the ace, should that make you lean toward No Trump as a rebid, or toward a suit call?" The average player would answer that question with "No Trumps." In doing so, he would be absolutely wrong. With such a hand, it is better to try to steer a probable No Trump contract into your partner's hand, if possible, by bidding a suit.

There was the bidding at three tables of a pair duplicate. At Table 1, North got into the No Trump game and East led the spade J against it, trapping the Q and preventing it from ever being a trick winner, whether North played it on the first trick or not. Thus limited to a single trick in the opened suit, he could find no way to score more than eight tricks, so was set one.

At the other two tables, where South was the declarer, both of the black suits were doubly-stopped if they got led, because the lead would come through the A up to the Q. At both of those West led a spade, as the only unbid suit, giving South two tricks right there, to which the declarer added four in hearts, two in diamonds and one in clubs. A diamond lead would have complicated things for South, but that lead, of the originally bid suit, would have been quite unlikely as seeming to be the worst lead of all, next to hearts.

The bidding at Table 3 was undoubtedly the most expert of all. Figure out the logic behind each bid of the pair, and you will see why.

A JOB FOR JENNY

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

WHEN GRAM had gone and Ede had returned, the two girls drank their milk companionably. Ede said, "You gave me a shock. I suppose you intended to do."

"Well, in a way," said Jenny, "just in case you—"

Ede said harshly, "I know. I wish Gram hadn't been here, though."

"It was the only way to make you believe it, telling you in front of her," said Jenny.

"It couldn't make any difference. If you knew how I despise myself."

Jenny said humbly, "I just wanted you to know that I—well, I was playing red herring."

Ede smiled shakily. "I've known that," she said, "for some time. You are an idiot, darling. She'll miss you a lot." She added, "But you're in pretty deep with Gram."

"Gram," said Jenny, "will tell me I'm climbing fool's hill, and she's right."

"What do you intend to do?" "Stick," said Jenny. "He won't bother me, Ede. He knows when he's licked."

"But suppose," said Ede, "he does ask for a divorce?"

"Then," said Jenny promptly, "I'll bet Mrs. H comes home running, either by submarine or by bomber. And once he sees her again he'll forget I ever existed."

Mrs. Hathaway was coming home, not because her husband had written her, but because she had not been well for some time and her superiors decided that she needed a long rest, after which she could be useful in her own country. She called that she was coming, she did not know just when, but they might shortly expect her.

Steve was at the Hathaway house when Mary, opening the cable, telephoned Justice in New York. They were in the library looking at the final plans which were to be presented at the town meeting. They were good plans, but would of course have to be greatly modified. He thought. That can be remedied, in good time and by the right people. He had plans of his own—if they went through.

Mary hung up and turned. She said, "This is pretty exciting news—not that I've ever cared much for my esteemed sister-in-law. Although I admire her, as you wouldn't." She looked at him thoughtfully. "She would have made you a wonderful wife, Steve, if she were a little younger, and hadn't met Justice first. She has beauty, poise, common sense, intelligence—and money."

"Well, thanks," said Steve, politely.

"Also," said Mary, "she isn't frivolous. Poor Justice." She sat down on the edge of the big table and regarded him. She said, "You are a difficult man."

"A simple one," said Steve firmly.

Mary said after a moment, "We could have had a good deal of fun together, Steve, with sparkle in it."

"Four dry Martinis have sparkle, too," said Steve, "and create a heck of a hangover."

Her face tightened. She said, and touched the papers on the desk, "You realize I could persuade my father to drop all this?"

"I don't think so."

"There are ways," said Mary. "He trusts me, far more than Justice, for instance. If I said that it would cost much more than we thought originally . . ."

"He isn't a child," said Steve. "He said gently, 'I didn't mean money, exactly. If I pointed out that immortalizing the Hathaway name might not be the road to the hearts of the stiff-necked Seahawens.'"

"He's vain," said Steve. "He won't believe you."

"I might suggest," said Mary, "that YOU aren't in this for reasons of pure humanitarianism."

"You could," said Steve, "suggest a lot of things. But the hospital will go through, one way or another."

She was silent. Then she said, "Justice may not be happy at Andrea's sudden appearance."

"No?" asked Steve politely.

"No," said Mary. "He has other fish to fry. . . . Not, I think, as cold," she added thoughtfully.

Steve looked a little grim. He asked, "Why not say you mean Jenny?"

"Well," Mary said, "if you want to take it up where we left it, the other night."

"If don't,"

Mary said, "You might be interested in knowing that he has dreams of domesticity. He came in the other night—it appeared they had driven to Northampton together on an alleged emergency errand—on a large table in Washington, sending out couriers and carrier pigeons. Anyway, he came in all pepped up. He had two highballs and told me that he wished Andrea would divorce him. He'd like to settle down to a normal life, build a home, raise a family. That was, of course, a slap in the face for Andrea. She couldn't hear or feel it, naturally, but he was thinking of her—and of Jenny."

"And why Jenny?"

"It's obvious. Jenny has old-fashioned ideas. She plays for keeps. Apparently my little brother got that through his beautiful head and it intrigued him. He's been used to other games."

Steve rose and stood looking at her. He said, "You're a pretty woman, Mary, with a very ugly mind."

She was white with anger, but she said steadily, "Thanks, so much."

He walked over and took her by the shoulders. He said, "No, I'm the one who owes you gratitude. You've helped me a lot, in more ways than one. And I'm not unkind of it."

"Joseph?" she inquired.

"I know. It's a role few men like to play. Make 'em feel damned silly. Potiphar's wife was very attractive," said Steve, with half a sigh, "likewise persistent. Also, as added calmly, 'obvious. Yet I am grateful. You see, I didn't like myself when I came home. I didn't like what was left of me, body and mind, nor the sort of life I'd have to adjust myself to, nor the fact that my friends knew and were sorry for me. You weren't. You were tough about it. That was good for me, good psychology for any man as self-pitying as I was. That rates gratitude. Also, you had plain that you, at least, did not find me repellent. Which was very good for what I termed my morale. Then, too, you got me interested in something besides myself. The hospital. And in addition, Madam Potiphar, you opened my eyes to a number of interesting and personal things."

"How very girl scout," said Mary.

"Exactly." He picked her up, and set her on her feet with astonishing ease. Even his big arm had strength. He kissed her, lightly, at the corner of her mouth. "That's for goodby," he said.

"Goodby?"

"I think so . . . for a while, anyway. I'll see you at the town meeting." He went to the door and turned. He said gently, "You're not such a bad kid after all, not nearly so bad as you think you are and try to be. I'll bet you make Howard Morgan a damned good wife. I'm a little sorry I have to—well, do what I must. Sorry, I mean, for your sake. Not for anyone else's."

His face was hard at the moment. Then it softened, and he grinned. He said, "Well, as far as you and I are concerned, no harm done. See you later." He flipped his left hand at her in a gesture of farewell, and was gone.

Mary stood looking after him. Her heart was tight. What had he meant, and why? She thought forlornly. I don't really love him. I don't suppose I'll ever love anyone but Pat, blast him. And still—

He didn't think he had meant it, saying goodby like that. If he did, there was always Howard. Steve was sick of men, she told herself angrily.

She looked down at the plans a moment, threw them on the floor and rang for cocktails. No use waiting until the regular hour. Steve had gone.

She thought, I must have a talk with Jenny.

DIET AND HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NEARLY every family circle includes some beloved older whose gentle wisdom and kindness add joy to the life of the home, but whose health offers special problems.

If one of these elderly persons falls ill, it is natural for the family to believe that prolonged rest in bed is necessary. This is far from true. Indeed, modern medical men are of the opinion that for most elderly patients the shorter the stay in bed, the better.

According to Dr. John F. Norman of Minnesota, when elderly people are confined to bed, they soon lack the will to make the effort to get up and around. They become hopeless in their outlook and in time even mentally backward. Without some incentive to get back to work or to their homes, these patients fail badly.

The custom of keeping patients in bed for a long period of time is more or less of a tradition. With the improvement in surgery and medical care, it would appear that such prolonged bed rest is unnecessary, may even be harmful.

Once an older patient is up and around, he will, as a rule, feel that there is hope that he is going to get well and he will co-operate better with the physician. Following operations in elderly people, there is danger of complications affecting the heart, blood vessels and lungs. The danger is far greater for overweight patients than for thin ones.

Blood Clots

In elderly patients after days or weeks of bed rest, blood clots are likely to form in the veins, particularly in the back of the leg or foot. Pneumonia may develop due to a collection of fluid in the lungs, favored by prolonged inactivity and bed rest. Long-continued bed rest may also be harmful in elderly people with heart disease since it not only may lead to congestion in the lungs but also to weakening of the heart muscle.

Of course, no set of rules can be put down for all elderly persons. However, in general, it would appear that prolonged bed rest adds to the risk in illnesses of the aged who already are handicapped and many would do better if they are out of bed early.

Problems regarding care of the old are more important now than ever before because the number of old people is constantly increasing. Due to the rapid strides made in the prevention of disease and death in young age groups, more people are living to old age.

Today, in the United States there are over nine million persons of 65 years or more, an increase of 36.5 per cent during the last ten years, a period during which the total population increased only 7.2 per cent.

Thus, with more elderly people whose welfare must be considered, medicine is striving to find better ways of looking after them.

In many offices the importance of an executive is indicated by the size of his desk. If he has one that is longer than five feet he becomes a "66 inch executive." Quality of wood, as well as design, also is indicative of executive importance.

This finale is an involved and amusing parody of those two great Oscar Hammerstein-Richard Rodgers-Theater Guild hits, "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel," both of which have strong regional flavor and are based on well-known plays. Miss Hamilton and her composer, Morgan Lewis, needed a state that had neither the exact flavor of the west nor of New England, yet in which they could frame appropriately their satirical version of characters from both regions.

"We thought at first that we'd use a northern state and have the characters in lumberjack costumes," she explained. "The lumberjack thing didn't work out, but somehow—frankly, I can't give you any real reason—we picked Wisconsin. It might just as well have been something else."

The town of Kenosha, Wis., might like to know that it figures in the number because the over-all name for the finale is "Wisconsin, or Kenosha Canoe." A fellow takes a girl out in a canoe and drowns her so he can have another girl. Of course, this calls for the Hamilton apologies to Kenosha also.

"I'm sure no one in Kenosha would do such a thing," she said. "Even if Lake Michigan is so handy." Actually Wisconsin should feel pretty good about the publicity. New Yorkers, who are a bit vague about that real estate west of the Hudson river, have heard about it at last.

Labor Secretary Schwellenbach emitted one long hurrah, but the initial statements from both sides were definitely vague and completely unenthusiastic, while the nation's cheering section as a whole seemed more concerned about asking who won and what it all meant.

No one won.

The deeper my inquiries led me to the inside of the matter, the clearer it became that the auto strike deadlock was not a matter of difference in wages, or "man-power", or any other advertised details of the conflict—but involved one single question.

That question was whether the CIO was to be a supra-business directorate in the same way it has sought to become a supra-government. In plainer language: Was CIO to be the boss and run the business, as it has attempted to be boss of government and run it?

Clearly CIO lost ground on that proposition. Its initial plan was to open the company books, determine company profits by this and future wage demands and make the concern subservient to union-economics by preventing the company from getting any price increase to meet these demands. These pressure moves appear to have been broken all along the line. The settlement mentions no book inspection and the initial statements avoided also the subject of wages and profits. Indeed, the government announced just before the break that any future auto price increases would be made retroactive and could be collected from the consumer after the sale—which suggests there may be price increases despite the union announcement to the contrary.

The CIO spell of domination has therefore been broken—but for how long? Motors got a two year contract, but Schwellenbach suggested it provided reopening of wage considerations in one year. The steel settlement was for one year. The pattern of all other current labor agreements is similarly one year, based also on the same wage increase. They plainly allow, therefore, for reopening the general strike campaign at that time.

Is this basic settlement then but a one year truce in the CIO campaign to create a supra-business dictatorship? Will all the familiar pressures of CIO upon business and government be renewed 12 months hence in the same revolutionary form, or even stronger form?

These are the questions which the settlement left lurking in the minds of thinking people and explains why the nation's cheering was considerably short of enthusiastic.

The agreements failed to achieve a permanent promise of continued production—in short a solution. But it certainly represents the first important progress toward that goal in many a past year. For one thing management did not cave in timidly in the face of pressures to absorb it, but broke them.

General Motors stood its ground and thus pointed the way toward a new and democratic technique for management which has been on the run for a long time. Also it beat the strategic union plan to isolate it from its competitors. Ford and Chrysler could not take advantage of GM's troubles because they could not get basic materials for production.

FAVOR THE SUIT BID

"IF YOUR only singly-stopped short suit is a doubleton or trebleton topped by the ace, should that make you lean toward No Trump as a rebid, or toward a suit call?" The average player would answer that question with "No Trumps." In doing so, he would be absolutely wrong. With such a hand, it is better to try to steer a probable No Trump contract into your partner's hand, if possible, by bidding a suit.

There was the bidding at three tables of a pair duplicate. At Table 1, North got into the No Trump game and East led the spade J against it, trapping the Q and preventing it from ever being a trick winner, whether North played it on the first trick or not. Thus limited to a single trick in the opened suit, he could find no way to score more than eight tricks, so was set one.

At the other two tables, where South was the declarer, both of the black suits were doubly stopped if they got led, because the lead would come through the A up to the Q. At both of those West led a spade, as the only unbid suit, giving South two tricks right there, to which the declarer added four in hearts, two in diamonds and one in clubs. A diamond lead would have complicated things for South, but that lead, of the originally bid suit, would have been quite unlikely as seeming to be the worst lead of all, next to hearts.

The bidding at Table 3 was undoubtedly the most expert of all. Figure out the logic behind each bid of the pair, and you will see why.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

3 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Landrum, Bexley, announce the birth of a daughter last night in Berger hospital.

Miss Mary Curtin presented a program of humorous readings on St. Patrick's day before the Kiwanis Club last night in Hanley's Tea Room.

Mrs. George O. Goodchild, Circleville Route 4, was returned home last night from Berger hospital where she was a medical patient for several days.

10 YEARS AGO

High winds and snow lashed Pickaway County last night blocking numerous roads with drifts of snow about two feet deep. Many telephone and light wires were down.

Miss Evangeline Smith, South Court street, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday from her boat trip through the Panama Canal. She left New York City February 27 for a two month's trip to the western states.

Mrs. Kermit Thomas and baby daughter were taken from Berger hospital today to their home on Williamsport-pike.

Miss Katharine Goeller visited her sister, Mrs. Frank Beck in Columbus today.

Circleville high school girls' basketball team will finish their season tomorrow night in a game with Williamsport. Since the boys are playing at Ashville the price of admission has been reduced to fifteen cents.

Senator Kenyon declares that 18,000,000 Americans are badly housed and that the country is "short" 1,000,000 homes. After investigation he declares the housing situation to be the leading problem within the nation.

YOU'RE TELLING ME!

NUDISTS are planning a worldwide campaign for recruits. Might be a good idea in this era of mutual suspicion among peoples. Total nudism would do away with the fear that the other fellow's concealing weapons.

However, we suspect global nudism hasn't the barest chance.

Nudism might catch on readily among the peoples of the tropics but it will take a supersalesman to convince the Eskimos.

Zodak Dunkopf ups and says he thought global nudism referred to that 245-pound Aga Khan getting himself weighed in the altogether for his annual weight-in-diamonds deal.

In a nude world we visualize ardent nationalists claiming their people possess the globe's finest freckles.

Under nudism Grandpappy Jenkins fears, international diplomacy may be what it is, world politics may become a greater skin game than ever.

The man at the next desk thinks world-wide nudism may have its advantages. For one thing, it would release us from worry over a white shirt shortage.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE
WHEN GRAM had gone and Ede had returned, the two girls drank their milk companionably. Ede said, "You gave me a shock. I suppose you intended to."

"Well, in a way," said Jenny, "just in case you—"

Ede said harshly, "I know. I wish Gram hadn't been here, though."

"It was the only way to make you believe it, telling you in front of her," said Jenny, "will tell me."

"It couldn't make any difference. If you knew how I despise myself."

Jenny said humbly, "I just wanted you to know that I—well, I was playing red herring."

Ede smiled shakily. "I've known that," she said, "for some time. You are an idiot, darling. She leaned over to take Jenny's hand. "I'll miss you a lot." She added, "But you're in pretty deep with Gram."

"Gram," said Jenny, "will tell me I'm climbing fool's hill, and she's right."

"What do you intend to do?" "Stick," said Jenny. "He won't bother me, Ede. He knows when he's licked."

"But suppose," said Ede, "he does ask for a divorce?"

"Then," said Jenny promptly, "I'll bet Mrs. H comes home running, either by submarine or by bomber. And once he sees her again he'll forget I ever existed."

Mrs. Hathaway was coming home, not because her husband had written her, but because she had not been well for some time and her superiors decided that she needed a long rest, after which she could be useful in her own country. She cabled that she was coming, she did not know just when, but they might shortly expect her.

Steve was at the Hathaway house when Mary, opening the cable, telephoned Justice in New York. They were in the library looking at the final plans which were to be presented at the town meeting. They were good plans, but would of course have to be greatly modified. He thought that that could be remedied, in good time and by the right people. He had plans of his own—if they went through.

Mary hung up, and turned. She said, "This is pretty exciting news—not that I've ever cared much for my esteemed sister-in-law. Although I admire her, as you wouldn't." She looked at him thoughtfully. "She would have made you a wonderful wife, Steve, if she were a little younger, and hadn't met Justice first. She has beauty, poise, common sense, intelligence—and money."

"Well, thanks," said Steve, politely.

"Also," said Mary, "she isn't frivolous. Poor Justice." She sat down on the edge of the big table and regarded him. She said, "You are a difficult man."

"A simple one," said Steve firmly.

Mary said after a moment, "We could have had a good deal of fun together, Steve, with sparkle in it."

"Four dry Martinis have sparkle, too," said Steve, "and create a heck of a hangover."

Her face lightened. She said, and touched the papers on the desk, "You realize I could persuade my father to drop all this?"

"I don't think so."

"There are ways," said Mary. "He trusts me, far more than Justice, for instance. If I said that it would cost much more than we thought originally . . ."

"He isn't a child," said Steve.

50 Years Of Married Life Is Celebrated

By Mr., Mrs. J. Trone
At East Ringgold Home

One hundred and twenty-five friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. John Trone called Sunday afternoon at their home in East Ringgold to extend good wishes on their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Both Mr. and Mrs. Trone have passed their 81st birthdays, and are enjoying good health.

The home was decorated with yellow roses and many cut flowers. Gold streamers and wedding bells were hung from the ceiling of the dining room where a three-tiered wedding cake with a tiny bride and groom flanked by gold candles adorned the table. Mrs. Trone cut the first piece of cake while Mr. Trone held her hand.

A dinner for the immediate relatives preceded the open house which was held from 2 until 4 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Trone have lived in their Ringgold residence 49 of their 50 wedded years. They were married in Stoutsville by the Rev. Seitz, March 18, 1896 and are the parents of two living children, Earl A. Trone, Columbus, and Mrs. Robert Codner, Groveport. They also have two grandchildren, John Robert and Mary Ellen Codner.

Guests and relatives were present from Bremen, Ind.; Elkhart, Ind.; Dayton, Columbus, Lancaster, Marion, Groveport, Kirtlandville, Circleville and vicinity.

Presby—Weds Elect Fox For President

Green candles in Irish potatoes and large shamrocks on the tables made up the decorations for the Presby-Weds Sunday evening in the Presbyterian Church.

Forrest Cronan, retiring president, was in charge of the business meeting. Officers elected for the ensuing year were Oliver Fox, president; Fred Howell, vice president; Mrs. Eugene Stevens, secretary-treasurer.

The men of the organization were in charge of the program. Members were divided into "Irish" families and acted out appropriate charades, Irish jokes, comedies and songs completed the program, along with a group of musical selections by Mrs. Robert Goodchild, at the piano, and the Rev. Carl Kennedy violinist.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

Furthermore, the union scheme to bring in Kaiser as a new motors manufacturer, and have him go to the White House and announce his acceptance of the union proposals and become champion for CIO, did not break the company position. The orders of government which would have put the company under the union thumb likewise were resisted.

These developments mark progress in the reconversion of the nation to genuine democratic peacetime ways of freedom from domination.

What is needed next is the development of an era of good feeling in labor relations in which unions will become unions again, and not aspirants for directorship of business and civil affairs. Then we will be truly reconverted to democracy.

Many Ex-Servicemen

Most teams in the league will have their share of ex-servicemen while the American Legion team is to be composed of all ex-GI's.

Better play has been assured by the return of many servicemen and a group of rules changes is going to make the game much faster and more exciting.

Emphasis has been taken off pitching and concentrated on hitting and scoring.

Complete schedules for the year are going to be printed and sold to the public. This is a feature that should greatly improve the attendance at the games. In past seasons fans have had to wait until the day of the contest to find out who was playing.

The League officers have purchased all the equipment necessary for the running of the league.

The schedule for the first week of play is as follows:

Monday—Esmeralda vs. Williamsport.

Tuesday—Isaly's vs. American Legion.

Wednesday—Blue Ribbon vs. Eagles.

Thursday—Richard's Implement vs. Stansbury-Stout.

SOFTBALL LOOP TO OPEN PLAY ON APRIL 29TH

Games To Begin At 8:30 P. M., Instead Of 9 O'Clock League Decides

Final plans for the opening of the Circleville City Softball League were completed Sunday in a meeting in The Daily Herald offices.

Eight teams have been granted franchises to participate in the league, which will get underway on April 29, approximately three weeks earlier than last season.

The starting time for contests this year has been set for 8:30 p. m. instead of 9 due to the change of time. Games were played on fast time last season.

New Sponsors Entered

Several new sponsors have entered the league this year. Only three of last year's sponsors have teams entered this year. They are: Richard's Implements, Blue Ribbon Dairy and Stansbury-Stout.</

NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Furthermore, the union scheme to bring in Kaiser as a new motors manufacturer, and have him go to the White House and announce his acceptance of the union proposals and become champion for CIO, did not break the company position. The orders of government which would have put the company under the union thumb likewise were resisted.

These developments mark progress in the reconversion of the nation to genuine democratic peace-time ways of freedom from domination.

What is needed next is the development of an era of good feeling in labor relations in which unions will become unions again, and not aspirants for directorship of business and civil affairs. Then we will be truly reconverted to democracy.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

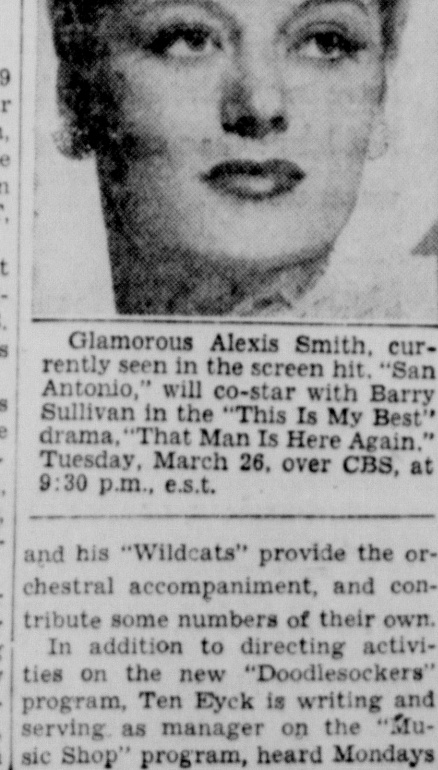

TEN EYCK BACK ON WLW

Sidney Ten Eyck, who from 1929 to 1933 was emcee for the popular WLW "Doodiesocks" program, has brought the show back to the air, and is being heard weekly on Wednesdays at 11:30 p. m., EST, over WLW.

It was almost 20 years ago that Ten Eyck entered radio and, except for four years in the U. S. Navy during World War II, he has been on the air ever since.

From 1929 to 1933 he served as master of ceremonies for the former WLW radio stars as Ramona, the Mills Brothers, Fats Waller, Eddie Albert and the Morin Sisters were members of the group.

The 1946 edition of the "Doodiesocks" is featuring a cast emphasizing youth. Doing the singing on the broadcasts are the Clooney Sisters, young harmony duo; Sylvia, soprano, and George Carroll, youthful baritone. Doc Wildeson through Thursdays on WLW at 6 p. m., EST.

SPITALNY ON TOUR

On the home stretch of a three week's tour, Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra pause in Oklahoma City to give the "Sooners" a program of "Spring in Oklahoma", when the "Hour of Charm" is heard Sunday evening, March 24.

Evelyn, first lady of the orchestra, plays the reigning hit, "It Might As Well Be Spring". Featured also are Jeannie singing "Voices of Spring" and contralto Francine warbling "Oh What a Beautiful Morning" from "Oklahoma!"

The complete program:

- Oklahoma — Orchestra and chorus—Rodgers.
- Voices of Spring—Jeannie—Strauss.
- Who'll Buy My Violets—orchestra—Padilla.
- Oh What a Beautiful Morning—Francine and choir—Rodgers.
- It Might As Well Be Spring—Evelyn—Rodgers.
- Tango Della Rosa—Orchestra—Schreier-Bottero.
- Home on the Range—Francine and trumpet—Traditional.

The hymn of the evening is dedicated to the patients and staff of the U. S. Naval Hospital at New Orleans, La.

The "Hour of Charm" is heard every Sunday evening at 10 o'clock eastern standard time over the full NBC network.

"TALE OF TWO CITIES"

"Tale of Two Cities," starring Ronald Coleman and Rosemary DeCamp in Charles Dickens' famous story of the French Revolution, comes to the Radio Theatre, Monday, March 18, at 9:00 p. m. (EST) over the Columbia network. William Keighley is producer of the full-hour dramatic program.

Ronald Coleman takes the role of the brilliant counsellor-at-law, Sidney Carton, and Miss DeCamp, the beautiful heroine, "Lucie." Their tale begins in France during the shadow of the rising revolution. Carton wins the everlasting friendship of Charles Darnay when he intervenes and cleverly reveals a plot that saves Darnay's life in a courtroom trial.

NINTH YEAR ON AIR

"Tap Time" (KDKA, Tuesdays, 7:30 p. m.) begins its ninth year on the air Tuesday night, having been featured on the airways since March 21, 1938. "Tap Time" features Maurice Spitalny and his orchestra, Vocalists Mary Martha Briney, Paye Parker, Bob Carter and the Kinder Sisters.

KYSER COLLEGE

Victor Borge, comedian and pianist whom Kay Kyser describes as "a very funny fellow," will be the visiting dean of languages at the O' Professor's "College of Musical Knowledge" on NBC Wednesday at 10 p. m. EST. Borge came to this country from Denmark in 1940. He had been ridiculing Hitler unmercifully in theatrical acts and in the press Borge said, "One of us had to go, and that's why I'm here—he couldn't take a chance."

On his arrival in New York, Borge could not speak a word of English. He found that a disadvantage because most people here do. So the next twelve months he spent attending double feature movies in 42nd Street theaters. Sometimes he saw as many as five or six shows a day, but eventually he picked up the language.

NEW SINGER

LucyAnne Polk, Kay Kyser's newest singing discovery, will be heard in a featured solo, "Just A Sittin' and A-Rockin'" on the O' Professor's "College of Musical Knowledge" over NBC Wednesday at 10 p. m. EST. Another musical professor, Michael Douglas, will

Soft Water

IS NOW AVAILABLE TO EVERY HOME IN CIRCLEVILLE
ON A SERVICE BASIS

At last you can have Soft Water in your home without any investment, bother or worry.

Have Wonder-Working Soft Water in Your Home . . .

THINK OF IT! WATER, SOFTER THAN RAIN, WITHOUT ANY TRACE OF HARDNESS . . . FOR BATHING, SHAMPOOING, DISHWASHING, LAUNDERING, FOR ALL WASHING PROCESSES . . . ON A PUBLIC SERVICE BASIS . . . JUST LIKE ELECTRICITY OR THE TELEPHONE. NO EQUIPMENT TO BUY . . . NO WORK OR WORRY ON YOUR PART . . . WE DO EVERYTHING FOR YOU!

The Savings are Greater than the Cost

When you use hard water, you pay for soft water service without having it. Make us prove to you that the savings from our service are more than twice the cost. We'll show you how softened water will save over half the soap you now use in washing with hard water . . . how your clothes will look better and wear longer . . . how your plumbing repair bills and fuel costs for heating water will be reduced. Zero soft water not only cleans the lime and rust out of your water pipes and coils, but keeps them clean.

Don't put up with hard water troubles any longer . . . have Culligan Soft Water Service installed today.

BATH—Creamy, lasting suds that make you feel really clean, yet rinse off in a jiffy, are yours with softened water in your bath. Since soft water forms no soap "curds", there is no bath tub ring to discolor the tub.

SHAMPOO—A soft water shampoo with heaps of silky suds will bring thrilling new beauty to your hair. Soap rinses out completely . . . no dull film left, just a gorgeous gleam. Dad will love his soft water shaves, too . . . and his razor blades will last for twice as many shaves.

CLOTHES—All clothes and linens wash much cleaner in soft water. No disagreeable soap curds, formed by hard water, that won't rinse out and leave washables gray and dingy looking. Clothes last longer because there's less rubbing the soft water way.

DISHES—Scads of foamy suds whisk grease away like magic. Dishes, glasses, silver, all sparkle and gleam like new. No need to dry them with a towel . . . softened water leaves no soap scum to smear, or lime to spot.

COSTS ONLY

$2.25

PER MONTH

Here is our Plan—

Our business is soft water service. We install our service softener in your basement or utility room. We own the equipment and we take full care of it. It occupies only a very small space. It provides sparkling 100% soft water at a turn of the faucet without any investment or attention from anyone in the household. We exchange it for a fresh one at regular intervals, regenerating the old unit at our plant, NOT in your basement.

Owners of Barber Shops, Beauty Parlors, Restaurants, Filling Stations and Apartment Buildings—Investigate the economy, satisfaction and great improvement in your service gained from Soft Water—The Culligan Way.

COOKING—The calcium and magnesium salts in hard water make vegetables tough and dull-looking. Soft water cooking retains garden freshness. Soft water coffee and tea taste better and use about  $\frac{1}{8}$  less grounds. Softened water is better for drinking, too.

OPEN LETTER from City Council

CITIZENS OF CIRCLEVILLE:

In City Council's letter of Saturday, March 9, 1946, in The Circleville Herald, it was not the intention to infer that the new "Soft-Water Service" business being started in Circleville was not a desirable means of softening water if the individual consumer desired to pay for the same.

We firmly believe that soft-water provides a large and substantial saving to the water-consumers in many ways. A commercial softener can soften water to zero hardness. We recognize that there is an appreciable difference between water of zero hardness and water of 5 to 6 grains hardness, but, due to various reasons advanced by our engineers and upon recommendation by various other cities, it is Council's intention to provide a water of from 5 to 6 grains hardness similar to other city-owned soft water supplies. If the individual consumer desires a water of zero hardness for any particular reason, the commercial softener can apparently provide the same. In many cities the commercial softener-service is used in conjunction with a city-owned soft water supply.
